AGRICULTURE.

From Atkinson's Phil delphia Evening Post. Silk.-Though little appears to be said, during the universal depression which appears to exist through the business community, on the subject of the silk culture, its friends may rest assured that much is doing and more in contemplation. Several meetings of the friends | call and examine his stock. of this great cause, have been held during the present month, in this city, which have resulted in the formation of a "National Association for the promotion of the Silk Culture in the United States." from which the happiest results are confidently anticipated. The business of the society will be managed by a presi dent, fifteen vice presidents, together with twenty-one directors and other officers, who have been selected from among the most distinguished individuals in this and the different states. The fards which may be realised are to be expended, under the direction of the association, in the jurchase of cocoons raw silk, and manufactured fabrics; and in securing the best reels and other implements required for the silk business through out the whole process of manufacture. An extensive, permanent, and free exhibition of all matters relating to the silk business, from its incipient to its perfect stages, are among the objects contemplated. The society has already secured some valuable specimens from the manufacture of John W. Gill, Mount Pleasant, Ohio, which are among the most perfect and beautifully finished goods we have yet examined, notwithstanding Mr. W, only embarked in the enterprise last spring Among them are several specimens of broad rich ribbons, of various patterns, and fully coul so far as our judgment goes, to any im-

an last number of Morris' Silk Grower mentions the following sales of mulberry

A sale of about 30,000 morus multicaulis trees took place at Trenton on the 10th ult. A lot of small trees sold at 11 1.2 cents per tree; the rest brought from sixteen to thertyfour cents, according to quality. At Fayettville, N. C., buds sold at 1 1 2 cents each, and trees at 20 cents per foot. At Wilmington, Del. 6000 trees sold at 30 cents, cash on delivery. In Bucks county, 30,000 at 30 were sold at a dollar a tree. At Hartford, Ct. 9000 at 30 cents, and lots of 4 and 5000, at the same price. At Glastenbury, Conn. 13,000 at 40 cents. At Ellington, Ct. 35,000 12 1-2 cents per foot, and 35 cents per tree refused for ten thousand more. At Columbia. Pa. sales at two cents a bud, and trees at 45 cents; also 100 trees at 11 cents per foot the root at 12 1-2 cts. additional; also 1000 trees at 50 cts. to average 25 buds each. TWO-CROP WORMS.

So for as we can learn, the two-crop worms do not meet with much favor. They are not manageable. They haten so soon after they are lad by he mo hs, that no preparation con be made for the young worms. In many instances, the eggs first a posited began to hatch before t e last moths had finished laying. They exenot be broug-t under proper die pane. They haveh when they please, in ult at pleasure, and spin when t ey are r ady, as a friend expressed him self to us, and thus bring the whole eccountry into confusion. Worst of all if you begin wit them is the spring, you must keep on, whether you wish to f ed succe-s ve crops or not, for as soon as the first broad lays its eggs, the eggs hatch in spite of you, and in a very irregular manner too, and you must feed them whether you will or not, or lose your eggs. You connot regulate your times of hardling with them; nor can you feed as many broods with them as with the other kinds, even if you design feeding all summer. It has always b en our opinion, that for the regular substantial business of silk mathat can be relied upon.

The pea-nut variety of -ilk worms meets with the most decided approbation of all we have heard from on the subject. We have never had any of this kind and only judge from t e opinions of thers; but then we have the testimony of any persons in their favour, whose opicions we consider better than our own. We recommend all who can, to obtain some of the eggs for a trial. They are represented as forming much more compact cocoon than any other variety, and it is said also that the saik is st onger and the cocoon easier reeled, and that they make more sick than any other kind .- [Jour. American CAUTION ABOUT MULBERRY TREES ..- II seems proper to state to purchasers of Morus Multicaulis trees, that there exists a difference in the character of the trees offered for sale, as to their relative value. Some persons have practised forcing them in hot houses, and then re-planting them in the open ground; and every one knows that such trees become se tender as to be unfit for any nothern climate. Many persons have also adopted the course of layering the side shoots a second time, and by placing these borizontally beneath the earth they cause numerous small shoots to spring up from each limb, and these they count as so many distinct trees in their sides, by which means they obtain from the purchaser a six or eight fold price for what should constitute in reality but one perfect tree, while on the other hand these young shoots, termed trees, are so green and immuture that they are totally value less. It is from such causes, that while good trees, raised from roots, &c, in the open ground are purchased with avidity, these inferior ones being valuless, are totally rejected .- Flashing Silk Grower.
